'In Islam, knowledge shapes us, it is not produced'

Habib University organises lecture by American scholar on Islamic vision of education

Dawn Report

KARACHI: A lecture by American scholar Dr Joseph E. B. Lumbard on Friday brought together intellectuals, representatives of civil society, alongside members of the Habib University community, for a wide-ranging discussion on how Islamic knowledge traditions can address some of the fundamental challenges facing modern higher education.

The lecture titled 'Beyond Specialisation: An Islamic Vision of Education' was the third public lecture in Habib University's flagship Reshaping Philanthropy in the Islamic World Lecture Series.

Dr Lumbard is an American Muslim scholar and Associate Professor of Qur'anic Studies at the Hamad Bin Khalifa University in Qatar, said a press release issued by Habib University.

"Nowhere in the Islamic tradition is knowledge understood as a human production. In fact, we can say quite the opposite. That dedication to knowledge produces us as regards to both individuals and societies. We do not, as is too often assumed in modern parlance, produce knowledge. Rather, we transmit knowledge through knowledge," he said, adding: "We cultivate knowledge through tarbiyah. We discover truth through kashf. We verify truth through tahqeeq. And we recognise truth through ma'rifah."

In his lecture, Dr Lumbard focused on what he described as an intellectual crisis in contemporary higher education. He argued that modern academia has increasingly fragmented knowledge into isolated disciplines, often divorced from ethical purpose and spiritual meaning. Drawing on Islamic intellectual history, he presented a vision of education that seeks not merely to produce technical specialists, but to cultivate intellectually and morally integrated human beings.Ha

DR JOSEPH E. B. Lumbard

He spoke about the effect of technology on humans that has resulted in cognitive decline and subsequently reduced knowledge and wisdom to information.

"Increasing reliance upon technology creates a world where the very tools many now use to access information ensure that the human faculties required for knowledge act ever more rapidly. Study upon study has shown the cognitive declines associated with excessive social media immersion and now with the cognitive offloading through regular use of artificial intelligence. Once heralded as great tools of enlightenment, the computer, the internet, the cell phone, and now AI drift further from these vaunted objectives as we humans succumb ever more to our basest desires," he said.

By linking knowledge with philanthropic institution-building, the lecture invited participants to reconsider how higher education might serve society in a more holistic and responsible manner.

The lecture series was introduced by Dr Nauman Naqvi, Associate Professor in the Comparative Humanities Program at Habib University, who highlighted the urgency of rethinking philanthropy as a long-term investment in knowledge, institutions, and ethical leadership rather than short-term charitable relief.

The session concluded with a Q&A segment, during which audience engaged Dr Lumbard on topics including the role of ethics in the pursuit of knowledge, the relevance of Islamic intellectual traditions today, and the institutional challenges facing higher education in Muslim societies.

The story of a mother

By Peerzada Salman

KARACHI: In 2020, a film titled The Father met with both critical and commercial success. The film's French director and co-writer Florian Zeller earned the best screenplay Oscar award for his effort and its principal actor, Anthony Hopkins, won his second best actor Oscar trophy for playing the role a man beset by dementia.

The movie was adapted from Zeller's own play having the same title. He is a celebrated playwright, novelist and filmmaker who, apart from other dramas, has penned three standalone plays The Father, The Mother and The Son. The Mother's Urdu adaptation, written and directed by Usama Khan, can these days be seen at the National Academy of Performing Arts (Napa) and will conclude its run on Sunday (tomorrow).

The play has the central character of Haleema (Nimra Bucha). She is a middle-aged married woman whose husband, Saad (Sonil Shanker), is overly occupied with his business meetings and other personal stuff that becomes apparent as the story progresses. They have two grown-up children, a son Arsalan (Ashmal Lalwany) and a daughter who, too, are busy with their lives. Haleema is vexed with Arsalan for not visiting her and being with a girl Sana who, according to her, doesn't suit him.

The core of the plot is to do with the way the mother is dealing with loneliness, inattentiveness on the part of those she has led most of life with, and the debilitating feeling of emptiness that is caused by sensing that her utility as a person has completed its shelf life.

The Mother is dialogue-driven so the director, in order to tell the audience that the protagonist's real and imagined lives move side by side and it's up to the viewer to decipher which is which, relies on the use of light to create that psychological binary.

On the first day of the play — that is, when it premiered — the timing of the spotlight switching on and going off was a bit… off. The script could also have been revisited because it falls short of the underlying intensity that is the mainstay of such plays.

As for the actors, is it Nimra Bucha's best work? It would be interesting to ask her. Is it Sonil Shanker's best effort? Again, he is in a better position to respond to the query — he is a seasoned theatre person who knows the importance of voice projection more than most of his colleagues.

26 key roads selected for overhaul

KARACHI: The Karachi Metropolitan Corporation (KMC) has launched a "significant infrastructure renewal programme," allocating approximately Rs5.54 billion to overhaul 26 key internal roads throughout the metropolis, said a statement issued on Friday.

"The extensive project, covering a total distance of 68 kilometres, is intended to upgrade urban mobility and modernise the city's infrastructure as part of a sustainable development outlook," it said.

"This initiative is in accordance with the Sindh government's vision to improve connectivity and provide safer, more fluid travel for citizens. —Staff Reporter fortification walls of earliest period," she added.

A member of the team, Ali Lashari, indicated that the project would last for next 10 years. He said under the project excavation would continue at certain "unidentified areas" too and students from different universities would be included in the trainings.

He said after the identification of fortification wall, the next part of the plan was submitted with the Technical Consultative Committee of National Fund for Mohenjo-Daro. The plan would be announced after getting approval from the committee, he added.

Nawazish Ali Dayo, field officer in the department of archaeology and antiquities, said they were working on the 'defensive wall' around the city of Mohenjo-Daro. He said the first round of work was done here in May 2025, and further work would continue.

They would undertake a survey to ascertain about the presence of other settlements, he said and hinted at doing surface collections.
